Not sure if it is or not. Protesters will tell you nothing is blocked. None of what they are doing is legal, but hey, it's Alberta. Any blockages are motor vehicles do they presumably would be moved in an emergency.

This was last night.

This wasn't the plan of the original group either, I have to wonder if another group hasn't weaselled their way in. In any case, I don't think it looks good for the protest. Also, why hold the trucks up that need to get north? Loads of produce in Sweetgrass, accumulating fines for being late delivering. Hopefully they don't block access through [REDACTED] Poor [REDACTED] so much traffic through her yard. Fire can get out that way too. [REDACTED] came in through the ditch last night.

Yea....frustrating....thanks for responding Jim. I would hope if there was a local emergency that they would allow access. Lets hope it remains civil. U have a good day!!

Should have stuck to their original plan, no blockade. Tie up one lane, let ppl come and go. Fight the big fight in Ottawa.

Doesn't sound good in MR. Bunch of protesters broke through the barricade and almost ran over cops. Listening to some here they are disgusted and leaving.

SMS Message received from [REDACTED] 7/1/2022 1:58:28 PM

I just drove by...seems like theres a bigger crowd. And they have the southbound road by the old CF road blocked with tractors. Whats their point?? (He wonders)

SMS Message received from Lori [REDACTED] 7/1/2022 1:59:42 PM

They think they are keeping the rcmp out. I think they are being taken over by rogue protestors.
